Gilead Medical Grant, Fellowship, Journal Club & Rounds Program - Project Classification Matrix

Audit

Projects can include the analysis of the quality of medical care, including the procedures used for diagnosis, treatment, care provision, patient profiling and the resulting outcomes.

Best practice sharing initiatives

Projects can include support for updating guidelines focused on identifying and sharing the most effective and efficient ways of working to enhance patient care. The aim of a best practice sharing initiative should be to promote excellence by sharing knowledge and experiences that have led to an improved standard of care provided within an organization.

Community outreach, education and engagement programs

Projects can include those aimed at connecting patients and the broader community to promote health/well-being and involve patients in their own health care. Projects can be designed to build relationships, increase awareness, and encourage active participation in health-related activities.

Frameworks to improve monitoring of patient-reported outcome measures

Projects can include those that review current "patient-reported outcome measures" and determine how best to improve the monitoring of outcomes, to enhance patient's health and well-being when engaging with an organisation and service.

Infrastructure for better diagnosis or detection of disease

Projects can include the development of pathways or services designed to improve the ability to identify diseases accurately and promptly to enhance overall patient care.

Patient support programs and tools

Projects can include programs and tools offered by a service or organization to help patients manage their medical condition(s) and navigate the healthcare system more effectively, to improve the overall patient experience when engaging with healthcare services.

Access to care and patient pathways

Projects can include those aimed at optimising processes and systems within healthcare that can guide patients through their journey from initial contact with the service/organization to the completion of their treatment and follow-up care.
